Market Review

Emerging market (EM) equities, as represented by the MSCI Emerging Markets Index, started the year on a positive note, rising more than 8% in January, before global rhetoric on protectionism and trade wars began to weigh on stocks. EM equities ended the first quarter of 2018 with a gain of 1.47%. The quarter's performance was a strong signal for the asset class, after a 37.75% rise in 2017. EM equities continued to outperform global stocks, as the MSCI World Index declined 1.15% for the quarter.

Emerging Asia ended the quarter with a slight gain of 0.87%. The US-China trade dispute dominated headlines for most of the quarter and affected investor sentiment. The Trump administration is planning to impose new tariffs on US$50-60 billion worth of Chinese imports. In response, China has announced a proposed list of over 100 US products upon which it will levy an additional 25% import tariff, collectively worth around US$50 billion.

However, there was no implementation date set, which leaves room for negotiation between the two parties in the coming weeks.

Latin America outpaced the rest of EM and grew 8.11% for the quarter. Brazil and Egypt were the two best performers in EM ex-Asia. Brazil rallied on the combination of lower-than-expected inflation leading to continued central bank easing, resilient commodity prices, and marginally positive news flow regarding the 2018 presidential election. Egypt moved on the back of dramatically improved inflation figures leading the central bank to pivot from an interest rate hiking cycle to a cutting cycle. On the negative side, Poland and Greece were the worst performers in the region. Poland saw a correction after a strong 2017. Greece fell on concerns regarding stress tests for the financial system along with the economy's perceived attachment to global trade.

Fund Review

Mirae Asset's Emerging Markets Fund (MILGX) closed up 0.82% whereas the MSCI Emerging Markets Index posted a net total return of 1.28% for the quarter ending March 31, 2018.

Key Contributors to Performance

- On a sector basis, Health Care contributed the most to the Fund's relative performance due to stock selection and an overweight allocation. Information Technology also had a positive impact mainly due to stock selection.

- With regards to geography, the top contributors to relative performance were China and South Africa as a result of strong stock selection. It is instructive to keep in mind that the portfolio's country weightings are a function of bottom-up stock selection rather than targeted allocations to particular countries.

- On the stock level, the top contributors to the Fund's relative performance during the quarter were Sunny Optical Technology, CSPC Pharmaceutical Group, and Banco do Brasil.

Key Detractors from Performance

- On a sector basis, the largest detractor from relative performance was Consumer Discretionary mainly due to allocation effects. Stock selection in Consumer Staples also had a negative impact on performance.

- Relating to geography, South Korea and India detracted the most from performance due to both stock selection and allocation effects.

- On the stock level, the biggest detractors were Mando Corp., Idea Cellular, and Brilliance China Automotive Holdings.

Outlook

We continue to have a positive long term outlook for EM equities on the back of a global synchronized recovery, a strong structural growth story, and an attractive technical opportunity. EM equities look attractive relative to developed counterparts based on a combination of discounted valuations, higher growth rates, and attractive positioning. EM corporate earnings have also been expanding, after hitting a trough in 2016. Other factors underpinning the positive outlook for emerging markets include improved current account balances, progress on political and economic reform, and declining inflation in select economies.

A trade war between US and China would have significant and undesirable effects globally. However, we do not anticipate a full blown trade war at this time. The Chinese market will likely remain more volatile in the near term as the trade dispute continues, though we believe the fundamental impact should be limited. Importantly, the global macro backdrop remains favorable, and as such, underlying demand for exports should remain supported as long as the trade situation does not escalate further.

In Brazil, we remain optimistic that the country will remain on a path toward long-term structural changes centered on pension reform. We also maintain a constructive outlook for Russia as we expect the rate cutting cycle to continue in 2018, supporting growth and the macroeconomic recovery.

While we believe that select macro concerns have abated and the current environment provides support for EM equities, we continue to focus on more predictable and enduring investment drivers, such as structural stories, proven business models, and strong management teams. Our Emerging Markets investment strategy continues to be driven by fundamental, bottom-up stock selection. It seeks to invest in high-quality companies with structural advantages that benefit from broad growth across emerging markets. We maintain the view that over the long-run, share prices reflect company earnings and fundamentals.
